Citavi in English

This course gives an in-depth introduction into the wide range of features the reference management program Citavi offers its users. It also shows how Citavi can be used to organize research and simplify the writing process.

As this course follows a hands-on approach, participants will be able to choose the features they want to get to know or advance their knowledge in. They will then explore these features themselves, while being able to receive help and ask all arising questions.

Please note
This workshop cannot be credited as qualification measures at the Department of Mechanical Engineering. However you are welcome to participate.

This workshop will be offered in cooperation with the University Library under leadership of Dr. Simone Kibler.

This course will be held in English.
