Writing Lab – a retreat for those who need to write

Are you just about to write a new article? Are you struggling with the development of a manuscript? Would you like some help with the structure of your thesis? Do you need to re-write or edit a specific part of your book?

Our Writing Lab is like a mini-retreat and offers a fantastic space for your personal writing project. Spread out over four consecutive days, the seminar will give you some useful input and then allow you to delve into your own work. While the official part of the Writing Lab takes place during the mornings, you are encouraged to use the afternoons to keep your writing flow alive. Your tutor will help you to structure your task.

The following topics will be covered during the workshop:

- Presentations on several topics related to academic writing
- Peer reviews of your writing
- Individual consultations with your lecturer
- Plenty of time to work on your 'writing project'

This course will be held in English.
