

Shaping bioeconomy, shaping the future. Be part of the International Student's Congress on Bioeconomy and Communication and get the chance to talk to a Minister.

Are you a university student currently enrolled in a social or natural sciences program that covers bioeconomy-related fields (food systems, forestry, climate change,...)? Do you have a strong interest in shaping the future of the economy and society? Then this is your opportunity to speak up and act as a student's ambassador!

The International Student's Congress on Bioeconomy and Communication brings together students from different countries and thematic backgrounds to share their views on bioeconomy. As one of the panelists, you will discuss the future of bioeconomy and the role that science communication plays in it.

As an output, the panel will collaboratively develop a student statement on bioeconomy. One panelist will be elected to present the results directly to a representative of the Food and Agriculture Ministry of Baden-Württemberg, as part of the 4th Bioeconomy Congress Baden-Württemberg the following day (27th September).

If you get elected to join the panel of the International Student's Congress, we cover your travel costs. If you get elected to join the High Level panel, we also cover for accommodation in Stuttgart.

When? 26.09.2022, 10:00 - 13:00

Where? Hilton Garden Inn, 70372 Stuttgart

To apply, send your motivation letter until July 31 to lena.riemann@ifp.uni-freiburg.de.

If you don't want to take part in the panel but still wish to contribute with your opinion on the future of bioeconomy, send your statement to lena.riemann@ifp.uni-freiburg.de and it will be included in the International Student's Congress! Plus you'll receive the livestream link to watch the Student's Congress from the comfort of your home.

More information on the 4th Bioeconomy Congress Baden-Württemberg:

<https://biooekonomie.baden-wuerttemberg.de/congress>