Dr. M. Marcsek-Fuchs:

TUBS-Players: English Theatre Group – 4412 111

We are working in teams. Time investment ca. 2-3 hrs per week per participant.

First Meetings:

- a) Wednesday, 5th November 2025: via Big Blue Button
- b) Friday, 7th November 2025: BI 80.303/304 (MakerSpace)

The theatre group of the Institut für Anglistik und Amerikanistik (EAS), called the TUBS-Players, has been producing plays for more than 30 years. We aim to provide quality entertainment in English for students of the TU as well as secondary schools and the general public. Any students (also from other faculties) who are interested in joining the group, whether on stage or back-stage, are welcome to join us.

Acting in English gives students an excellent opportunity to improve their language proficiencies and to deepen their interpretative skills in our discussion rounds. The projects help discuss, apply, and creatively engage with knowledge acquired in all fields of English Studies: literary/cultural studies, linguistics, didactics, and language skills. Additionally, the students will be introduced to theoretical concepts of performance such as voice, body language, movement analysis (Laban), theatre space, composition/choreography as well as costume and set design. Furthermore, participants will get the opportunity to experience and participate in the making of larger scale cultural events by contributing to such project groups as public relations, programme, finances, and backstage management. One of the project groups focuses specifically on creating workshops and preparatory material for schools.

Acting experience is not necessary. Rehearsals and workshops are usually held once or twice a week in the evenings online via Big Blue Button and in-person at the MakerSpace. We shall use our online meetings to find new ways of digital theatre and the rehearsals at the MakerSpace to work on our theatrical and filmic performances. Our projects of the upcoming terms include:

1. NEW PROJECT: Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream(S)

Shakespeare's classic performed as a mix between digital, hybrid, participatory, and immersive theatre. Video conference meets green screen, and participatory theatre meets immersive performance...All this will enrich our live theatre version of Shakespeare's comedy...Come and help us bring this magical play to life on the screen and on campus. Furthermore, enjoy creating online games and other learning formats for our production...

2. "Shakespeare@School"

As part of our project Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream(S), we will create material specifically for classroom engagement and uni classes. Another highlight of the year is our school visit, where we help create a theatre centred project week for the EFL classroom. Both projects are a great and creative way of getting practical experience and enhancing your teaching skills in addition to your internships.

3. "Drama-in-Session"

Whenever a seminar works on theatre plays (especially Shakespearean ones), the TUBS-Players can be there to add their expertise via dramatized readings, enacted short scenes, or an entire theatre workshop. With this, we additionally study teaching resources as published by theatre companies and other educational programs.

Newcomers are welcome!! For more information please contact Dr. Maria Marcsek-Fuchs (m.marcsek@tu-bs.de) or just come by our first meeting.

To enrol, please sign up in Stud.IP. Registration opens September 23rd, 2025 (4 am/16:00 h).

Teaching Film – 4412 621

SE, Mo 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.2

This seminar will focus on both the why and how of teaching film in the EFL classroom. It will provide an introduction to the study and teaching of film, methods of analysis (and how to guide learners in film and television analysis), and key concepts of cinema and television studies (e.g. storytelling and narrative style, mise-en-scène, editing, etc.). Learning how to read and teach film with regard to various formal aspects will acquaint students with the aesthetic and narrative features, as well as the meaning of films (or film scenes) and traditions of film. Students will acquire the competency and analytic skills to critically read and interpret audiovisual media, and will learn how to work with film in class (incl. such questions as how to assess the students' media literacy, for interest and ability may vary greatly within a class, so that they can teach a broad range to diverse students (age, abilities, interests)). Finally, we will create tasks and lesson plans centered on our findings.

Online-SE, Di 16:45 – 18:15, BI 80.303/304 (Online)

This innovative, hybrid course with an online-only option for international students has been designed for a mixed-discipline cohort to explore the contribution visual Holocaust children's literature (picturebooks and graphic novels) can make to supporting global citizenship education and promoting the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). The selected children's literature, combined with story-based pedagogy, human rights pedagogy, and a global citizenship education framework, offers an entry point to take action against not only antisemitism but any kind of discrimination, intolerance, and prejudice. The course has been designed to inform and encourage both text-based (spoken and written) and arts-based interaction.

The course consists of asynchronous and asynchronous online-sessions (April - May 2025) as well as two on-site workshop days in June 2025

Methods and Materials for CLIL – 4412 404

SE, Do 09:45 – 11:15, BI 80.303/304 (MakerSpace)

CLIL steht für integriertes Fremdsprachen- und Sachfachlernen. Wer das Potential dieser Unterrichtsform ausschöpfen will, muss beide Elemente systematisch berücksichtigen und aufeinander beziehen. Mit Blick auf die Inhalte des jeweiligen Faches bedeutet dies die gezielte Erschließung der erweiterten fachlichen Perspektiven in der Dimension des interkulturellen Lernens. Der gezielte Aufbau fachsprachlicher Elemente steht im Mittelpunkt der sprachlichen Lernprozesse. Insbesondere im Anfangsunterricht ist dabei aber eine Diskrepanz zwischen kognitiven und den fremdsprachlichen Möglichkeiten der Lernenden einzukalkulieren. Wie kann diese Lücke geschlossen werden und wie sollten Arbeitsmaterialien gestaltet sein, um das fachliche und fremdsprachliche Lernen zu erleichtern?

Ausgehend von einem didaktisch-methodischen Bezugsrahmen stehen praxisrelevante Fragen der Planung und Durchführung von Unterricht sowie der Materialanalyse und -aufbereitung im Mittelpunkt des Seminars. Folgende Schwerpunkte sind dabei geplant:

- Eckpunkte einer Didaktik
- Sprachliche Grundlagen inhaltlichen Lernens:
Planungsfelder für die Integration von Sprache und Inhalt: fachlicher Diskurs, Rezeption/Produktion - Fachmethodische Arbeitsweisen im Umgang mit unterschiedlichen Materialien und entsprechende Sprachfunktionen – Systematische Wortschatzarbeit
- Unterrichtsmaterialien:
Unterschiedliche Materialien und ihre Bezugsquellen – Schulbuchvergleich /Materialanalyse –Perspektivwechsel: kontrastive und komplementäre Materialarrangements - Strategien sprachlicher Unterstützung – Scaffolding – Exemplarische Erarbeitung eigener Materialien
- Unterrichtspraxis:
Kriterien für die Planung von CLIL-Unterricht – methodische Fragen der Unterrichtsdurchführung

Die einzelnen Aspekte werden anhand konkreter Beispiele aus der CLIL-Unterrichtspraxis erarbeitet. Sekundärliteratur und Material werden rechtzeitig über StudIP bekanntgegeben bzw. im Rahmen des Seminars zur Verfügung gestellt.

Hinweis: Dieser Kurs ist für das CLIL-Zertifikat (Vertiefungsbereich) geöffnet.

Socio-pragmatic Approaches to Second Language Acquisition – 4412 028

SE, Do 09:45 – 11:15, BI 85.3

Language learning is always situated in social contexts and, in turn, it is affected by social factors. In this class, we will concentrate on various social factors interacting with second language acquisition and deal with central theories and research in this field. Among the topics we will address are: the roles of input (and adjustments of input such as foreigner talk or teacher talk), interaction between learners and with teachers or native speakers, the acquisition/learning context (naturalistic versus instructed, study abroad vs. at home), as well as societal factors (group membership and identity, language socialisation).

We will start by reviewing basic concepts of second language acquisition as well as sociolinguistics. After that, we will proceed to study a selection of social approaches to second language acquisition (Sociocultural Theory, the Identity Approach, the Language Socialisation Approach). We will also look at empirical research on the development of sociolinguistic competence in the second language. Finally, we will address how sociolinguistics can be integrated in the language classroom.

Reading and discussing research papers, as well as practical work will be an integral part of this seminar.

Basic knowledge of second language acquisition (e.g. from module A2) is presupposed.

PR Mo 18:30 – 20:00, BI 85.3

This course aims at combining theoretical concepts with practical information for EFL teaching. It serves to prepare students for their six-week internship. We will look at relevant documents for teaching English in Lower Saxony and deal with topics such as competence-oriented teaching, lesson planning, and teacher identity. Participants will have various options to engage in practical activities. We will also plan lessons together and evaluate them. Depending on your choice, there are two options for achieving credit:

1. The internship is done in English (meaning that you will mostly teach English and be accompanied by the teacher). You will write a portfolio (FP1).
2. The internship is done in the other subject (meaning that your other subject is responsible for its organization).

All of you will prepare and present warm-ups as well as an English lesson plan (45 or 90 mins) and present it in class. Additionally you will take part in a “language village” in school with year 7 pupils on two mornings from approximately 8 – 12 am. If you want to do your internship in English, please contact me before the start of term to talk about possible schools. To enrol, please sign up in Stud.IP.

Survey Course I: American Literature I (Group A) – 4412 050

SE, Mo 11:30 – 13:00, BI 97.11

This survey course provides an overview of the major periods and writers of modern Irish literature. After a brief introduction to writing prior to the nineteenth century, we will turn to the literature of Irish Romanticism, the Irish Literary Revival, Modernism and Postmodernism, and, finally, to contemporary times. We will not only discuss the aesthetic qualities of Irish poetry, drama, fiction, and other prose written in English but also take into account its political and cultural contexts. This involves, above all, Ireland's journey towards independence from Britain and its cultural and linguistic heritage as a Celtic nation.

Literature (please purchase our textbook):

Additional reading material will be announced at the beginning of the semester.

SE, Do 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.1

This course (the first in a two-part sequence) aims at providing a rough (and necessarily sketchy) overview over the key texts and periods of English literature from the Renaissance to Romanticism. Our starting point will be the merits, pitfalls and governing principles of writing literary histories. We will then focus on Medieval, Renaissance (Elizabethan, Jacobean, 1500 to 1660), Classicist Restoration, Augustan (1660 to 1789), up to Romantic literature (1790 to 1830).

SE, Fr 13:15 – 14:45, BI 85.1

This survey course is designed as a rough overview over the literary history(ies) ranging from Medieval Literature to early Romanticism. Our literary as well as cultural journey will encompass poetry, drama, narrative fiction, essays, and culturally relevant critical texts. By discussing selected works ranging from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance to Pre-Romanticism, from Beowulf and William Shakespeare to Thomas Gray, we will trace lines of development and place these texts into their literary, as well as cultural contexts. This course will provide an opportunity to deepen analytical skills and to further an awareness of literature as a crucial part of rapidly changing times.

Morphology – 4412 043

SE, Di 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.1

This course will introduce the participants to the study of the structure of words and the formation of new complex words in contemporary English. After a review of relevant basic linguistic terms for morphological analysis (word, lexeme, morpheme, prefix, suffix, root, stem, base), we will consider inflection as well as productive types of English word formation:

- a) derivational suffixation (unfriendly, yuppiedom) incl. conversion/zero derivation (to tango, to email) and
- b) compounding (teapot, couch potato).

The particular status of non-syntagmatic processes of abbreviation like blending (brunch), initialism (BBC), acronyms (NATO), or clipping (flu) will be discussed as a contrast to compounding and derivation. We will use current theoretical frameworks to describe:

- (a) the regular word-internal structures,
- (b) their rule-based semantic interpretation,
- (c) general semantic changes as effects of word formation, and
- (d) pragmatic and other extra-linguistic blockings of word creation.

We will also address the following questions:

- a) How do children acquire knowledge of word-formation processes and the meaning of complex words?,
- b) How are (complex) words represented and stored in the monolingual mental lexicon?

Dr. R. Carroll:

Phonetics & Phonology – 4412 041

SE, Mi 08:00 – 09:30, BI 97.11

Phonetics and phonology are concerned with the ways in which humans produce and hear speech. They thus represent the science of speech sounds and the theory behind phonological rules. Languages vary widely in their sound structures: their number and type of phonemes, the shape of syllable structure, use of tonal contrasts, stress patterns, and so on. At the same time, all languages show striking similarities in the way they structure their sound systems. Phonology strives to understand the structure behind these differences across different speech systems. This seminar introduces the science of speech sounds and the theory behind phonological rules.

- How can we describe the pronunciation of a language?
- What do people do when they play language games?
- Why do loanwords sound so utterly differently from the way they sound in the donor language?
- How does the mind represent the phonological form of words?

We will revisit the concepts of phonetics and phonology that were introduced in the B2 module but focus on rules and theoretical models that go beyond the descriptions of surface phenomena. Topics include acoustic, articulatory, and perceptual phonetics, distinctive feature theory, tones, suprasegmental phenomena, word stress, phonology above the word, as well as different theoretical approaches to explaining and predicting underlying structures.

Syntax – 4412 040

SE, Do 16:45 – 18:15, BI 80.1

This course will discuss the central semantic and pragmatic approaches to meaning in language, introducing the main concepts and methods of the study of context-free (semantic) and contextually dependent (pragmatic) meaning. We will consider meaning at several levels (lexical, sentential, discourse) and discuss the relationship between grammar and meaning. In the first part of the course we will discuss a) the theory of lexical fields and sense relations, b) prototypical properties of lexical items and c) the theory of semantic components. We will then investigate the contextually dependent meaning based on culturally or situationally embedded frameworks of understanding words by their function, use and background knowledge. Finally, we will focus on a principle-governed interpretation of meaning based on discourse implicatures that accounts for the ambiguous and dynamic status of meaning caused by linguistic interactions.

Second Language Acquisition – 4412 023

SE, Do 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.3

This course will provide an overview of the central issues discussed in second language acquisition, e.g.:

- What are the processes underlying language acquisition in general?
- Is there a difference between first and second language acquisition?
- What is the role of the first language?
- Are there individual differences between learners of the same second language?
- How do learners communicate in the second language?
- What is the role of instruction?

Current models / theories of (second) language acquisition, as well as empirical studies will be introduced. Students will also be familiarised with the analysis of language data.

German-English Translation (Group A) – 4412 442

UE, Mi 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.3

Translation is a skill that demands the highest awareness of equivalence between languages. As a learning medium, it requires that the student give painstaking attention to detail and a careful interpretation of what is being said in the original language. Translation from German into English also allows students to develop their awareness for subtleties in the language such as collocations, style, tone and connotation. Furthermore, the course functions as an exercise in contrastive grammar: how are certain German constructions best rendered in English? In addition, through a combination of readings about translation, group work, and individual projects, students will learn to navigate some of the more detailed concerns of translation that go beyond grammatical features. Going beyond the contrastive features of grammar and syntax, we will also focus on not only understanding the subtleties of the German language, but also on how to reproduce those nuances in English. Finally, we will focus on specific areas of the source language that do not easily transfer to the target language.

At the end of this course, successful students will be able to:

- explain the characteristics of the German tradition of translation
- translate German texts into English while taking cultural and historical considerations into account
- improve their translations with techniques involving voice, wordplay, symbolism, and genre

Future-War Narratives – 4412 178

SE, Mo 13:15 – 14:45, BI 80.1

This seminar traces how a wave of speculative fiction about wars yet to come in 19th-century Britain imagined future conflicts and how those narratives reflected real-world anxieties about technology, national security, and social order. We will read a number of texts – from “invasion” fictions to proto-sci-fi “scientific romances” – and situate them alongside period military and political commentary, as well as more contemporary visions of future-war during the cold war (Clancy) and the 21st-century rivalry between the US and China (Singer/Cole). Be warned: the texts we will read may be bellicose, jingoist, patriarchal, xenophobic, and racist.

Shakespeare Adapted – Adapting Shakespeare – 4412 108

SE, Fr 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.1

Shakespeare's plays have been adapted into other media of expression since the Renaissance. Even contemporary stagings can be read as undergoing processes of adaptation, transforming written scripts into multimedial stage events. As Linda Hutcheon observes, adaptations are acts of interpretation (cf. 84). Adapters are consumers and creators at the same time, whose readings of the respective (Shakespearean) works are the inspiration for new autonomous creations, reflecting not only the playfulness of interpretation but also that of historical and medial contextualization.

In this seminar we will discuss adaptations of several Shakespeare plays and sonnets in a wide range of medial forms, ranging from films, (web-)series, musical- and dance versions to video- and board games, as well as AI experiments. Our examples can also include (meta-)fictional constructions of William Shakespeare's biography and Renaissance stage conventions in films such as John Madden's Shakespeare in Love (1998), Roland Emmerich's Anonymous (2011), or Jessica Swale's multimodal play All's Will that Ends Will (2014). A final selection of examples will be agreed upon together with the course in the first weeks of the term. One special example will be The TUBS-Players' recent rewriting entitled Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream(S), where members of our class can become adapters, dramaturges and exhibition curators themselves. As a special treat, we will devise teaching resources, games and workshop material that will help school students to prepare for their visit of the TUBS-Players' production.

Please get informed about Shakespeare's life and times, and (re-)read his A Midsummer Night's Dream, Romeo and Juliet, as well as Hamlet before the term..

Primary Literature:

Shakespeare, W.: A Midsummer Night's Dream, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, and some more...

The Arden or Oxford editions are highly recommended. However, cheaper editions (such as Reclam), as well as online editions by the Folger Shakespeare Library, or anthologies are permitted on the precondition that you also work with critical editions.

Environmental Imaginaries in Anglophone Postcolonial Fiction – 4412 544

SE, Fr 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.1

Anthropogenic climate change can be considered one of the defining discourses of the 21st century. It is not surprising then, that not only the scientific but also the literary world has tried to come to terms with the complex challenges climate change poses for the planet. As Indian author Amitav Ghosh has famously argued: "[T]he climate crisis is also a crisis of culture, and thus of the imagination" (The Great Derangement 9). Ghosh thereby points to the difficulties of portraying and negotiating this complex phenomenon in contemporary literature(s). The genre of 'climate fiction' has been firmly established in the Global North, especially in the Anglo-American sphere, and can arguably be seen as a response to this 'crisis of imagination'. Yet in recent years, a growing body of fiction from the Global South has started to challenge the dominance of 'Western' narratives about climate change by imagining the entanglement between 'environmental' crises and colonial and neo-colonial discourses.

In this seminar, we will look at such 'environmental' imaginaries in contemporary postcolonial literatures. Students will be familiarised with the critical framework of postcolonial ecocriticism, as well as with key theories from the Environmental Humanities. We will then primarily read works from India, but also from Australia or Africa, and look at how these texts envision the relationship between the 'human' and the non-human, as well as how they negotiate the impact of ecological crises on identity categories, such as class, race, and gender.

Literature:

Ghosh, Amitav. The Hungry Tide. London: HarperCollins, 2004.

Sinha, Indra. Animal's People. London: Simon & Schuster, 2007.

Texts from Australia and/or Africa will be chosen in the first sessions of the seminar, depending on preferences and interests.

Sociolinguistics – 4412 315

SE, Mo 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.1

In this seminar we will take a look at English from a sociolinguistic point of view. Sociolinguistics is the study of the relationship between language and society, and sociolinguists study how different social contexts affect language use. In this class, we will focus on social factors at the level of the individual, examining ascribed vs. acquired characteristics (social class, sex, ethnicity), but also at the level of the community in that we examine linguistic practice in different linguistic networks. Specifically, we review classical areas of sociolinguistic study, such as regional and social variation, politeness, gender and sexuality, ethnicity, and multilingualism and language contact. We will also consider our attitudes and beliefs about linguistic variation and how this information is perceived and represented. Finally, we will consider the study of sociolinguistics in light of new technology, such as social media and Artificial Intelligence.

The Grammar of Englishes – 4412 035

SE, Do 11:30 – 13:00, BI 80.1

This course will survey core grammatical properties across different varieties of current Englishes. The purpose of this course is to investigate the variation in English grammars in typological perspective. After a general introduction to variationist linguistics, we will look at variation in the noun phrase, in the verb phrase and at the clause and sentence levels. Taking a functional approach, we systematically describe differences in the grammars of Englishes around the world, and we chart commonalities across varieties. We will compare English to other languages in typological perspective. On top of introducing you to variation among Englishes, this course also serves as a refresher of core grammatical concepts and terms, and it will sharpen your skills in grammatical description and analysis.

Bilingual First Language Acquisition – 4412 311

SE, Fr 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.3

In this seminar we will explore how children growing up with two languages from birth acquire the two languages simultaneously and how they learn to use the two languages appropriately when communicating with other people. A recurrent question in research on bilingual first language acquisition is whether the children acquire the two languages separately (i.e. their acquisition patterns are identical to monolingual patterns) or whether there is some kind of interaction/interdependence in the development of the two languages. We will address this question looking at the levels of phonology, morpho-syntax and vocabulary. We will also discuss which factors influence the development of the two languages (e.g. type and amount of input in the two languages) and will discuss possible explanations for different rates of development (unequal development) or different outcomes (e.g. receptive bilingualism). Apart from acquiring the lexical and structural aspects of the two languages children also have to learn how to use the two languages in accordance with socio-pragmatic norms. So we will also address the acquisition of language choice patterns of simultaneous bilingual children. Finally, we will focus on code-switching, a typically bilingual phenomenon that requires linguistic and socio-pragmatic competence on the part of the speaker. We will look at how bilingual children acquire this competence and whether / how this is related to the general development in the two languages.

Regional Studies II (Group A): African American Cinema – 4412 453

The history of the African-American Cinema is a harsh timeline of racism, repression and struggle contrasted with film scenes of boundless joy, hope and artistic spirit. Until recently, the study of the “separate cinema” (a phrase used by historians John Kisch and Edward Mapp to describe the segregation of the mainstream, Hollywood film community) was limited, if not totally ignored, by writers and researchers. The uphill battle by black filmmakers and performers, to achieve acceptance and respect, was an ugly blot on the pages of film history. Upon winning his Best Actor Oscar for Lilies of the Field (1963), Sidney Poitier accepted, on behalf of the countless unsung African-American artists, by acknowledging the “long journey to this moment.”

This class will take you on a journey of African American Cinema beginning with the blatant racism of D.W. Griffith's The Birth of a Nation (1915), a film respected as an epic milestone, but reviled as the blueprint for black film stereotypes that would appear throughout the 20th century. We will also look at the much forgotten African American film industry of the early to mid-20th century before moving to the period of “Blacksploitation” or “Blaxploitation” films of the late 1960s and 70s. We will venture into the “New Black Wave”, beginning in the 1980s (led by directors such as Spike Lee and John Singleton).

We will end with the 21st century when Black actors finally found themselves among the major box office stars of the day, and when actors such as Chadwick Boseman, Viola Davis, Colman Domingo and Quvenzhané Wallis win Oscars for serious, high-profile and varied roles, showing that all aspects of the African American film industry were finally earning the respect that was long overdue.

Regional Studies II (Group B): Great Britain: Britain's Place in Europe – 4412 457

SE, Do 15:00 – 16:30, BI 82.006

This course examines the sometimes-vexed subject of Britain's relationship with Europe. How similar has Britain been to other European countries, and in what respects? Do Brits feel European, and have they taken an interest in events on the continent, or has the distance from Europe led to insularity and xenophobia? Finally, how involved in European affairs has Britain been over the last several hundred years?

Starting with the Iron Age (c.1200 – c. 550 BC), the Reformation (16th Century) and the Glorious Revolution (1688), the course will examine Britain's relationship with Europe in the 18th, 19th and 20th Centuries, culminating in more recent events, such as the Brexit referendum (2016) and the United Kingdom and Europe's ongoing support for Ukraine.

Reading (Group A) – 4412 444

UE, Di 15:00 – 16:30, BI 97.1

Most students acquire vocabulary incidentally through indirect exposure to words at home and at school – by listening and talking, by listening to books read aloud to them, and by reading widely on their own. It has been proven that reading is important to long-term vocabulary development and that extensive reading provides students with repeated or multiple exposures to words. Thus, reading provides a means by which students see vocabulary in rich contexts. To that end, Vocabulary Expansion II employs a text in combination with a web platform to engage students in actively thinking about word meanings, the relationships among words, and how words can be used in different situations. Different methods will be used to help students extend and master vocabulary: defining words in context, using context clues, word sketching, analyzing word parts, semantic mapping, and creating word consciousness. Students are will also create word logs and writing assignments based on the target vocabulary.

Autonomous Learning in the Inclusive EFL Classroom – 4412 640

SE, Mo 09:45 – 11:15, BI 80.303/304 (MakerSpace)

The concept of learner autonomy has become a true 'buzzword' in the EFL research community during the last two decades, but has not yet been widely implemented in language classrooms throughout Germany. Nevertheless, teachers face very heterogeneous inclusive classrooms and need to find new ways to challenge and foster students. This could be accomplished by shifting responsibility for learning to individual students and granting them more independence and autonomy. This innovative, hybrid course with an online-only option for international students has been designed for a mixed-discipline cohort to explore the contribution visual Holocaust children's literature (picturebooks and graphic novels) can make to supporting global citizenship education and promoting the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). The selected children's literature, combined with story-based pedagogy, human rights pedagogy, and a global citizenship education framework, offers an entry point to take action against not only antisemitism but any kind of discrimination, intolerance, and prejudice. The course has been designed to inform and encourage both text-based (spoken and written) and arts-based interaction.

Methods and Materials for CLIL – 4412 404

SE, Do 09:45 – 11:15, BI 80.303/304 (MakerSpace)

CLIL steht für integriertes Fremdsprachen- und Sachfachlernen. Wer das Potential dieser Unterrichtsform ausschöpfen will, muss beide Elemente systematisch berücksichtigen und aufeinander beziehen. Mit Blick auf die Inhalte des jeweiligen Faches bedeutet dies die gezielte Erschließung der erweiterten fachlichen Perspektiven in der Dimension des interkulturellen Lernens. Der gezielte Aufbau fachsprachlicher Elemente steht im Mittelpunkt der sprachlichen Lernprozesse. Insbesondere im Anfangsunterricht ist dabei aber eine Diskrepanz zwischen kognitiven und den fremdsprachlichen Möglichkeiten der Lernenden einzukalkulieren. Wie kann diese Lücke geschlossen werden und wie sollten Arbeitsmaterialien gestaltet sein, um das fachliche und fremdsprachliche Lernen zu erleichtern?

Ausgehend von einem didaktisch-methodischen Bezugsrahmen stehen praxisrelevante Fragen der Planung und Durchführung von Unterricht sowie der Materialanalyse und -aufbereitung im Mittelpunkt des Seminars. Folgende Schwerpunkte sind dabei geplant:

- Eckpunkte einer Didaktik
- Sprachliche Grundlagen inhaltlichen Lernens:
Planungsfelder für die Integration von Sprache und Inhalt: fachlicher Diskurs, Rezeption/Produktion - Fachmethodische Arbeitsweisen im Umgang mit unterschiedlichen Materialien und entsprechende Sprachfunktionen – Systematische Wortschatzarbeit
- Unterrichtsmaterialien:
Unterschiedliche Materialien und ihre Bezugsquellen – Schulbuchvergleich /Materialanalyse –Perspektivwechsel: kontrastive und komplementäre Materialarrangements - Strategien sprachlicher Unterstützung – Scaffolding – Exemplarische Erarbeitung eigener Materialien
- Unterrichtspraxis:
Kriterien für die Planung von CLIL-Unterricht – methodische Fragen der Unterrichtsdurchführung

Die einzelnen Aspekte werden anhand konkreter Beispiele aus der CLIL-Unterrichtspraxis erarbeitet. Sekundärliteratur und Material werden rechtzeitig über StudIP bekanntgegeben bzw. im Rahmen des Seminars zur Verfügung gestellt.

Teaching Film – 4412 621

SE, Mo 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.2

This seminar will focus on both the why and how of teaching film in the EFL classroom. It will provide an introduction to the study and teaching of film, methods of analysis (and how to guide learners in film and television analysis), and key concepts of cinema and television studies (e.g. storytelling and narrative style, mise-en-scène, editing, etc.). Learning how to read and teach film with regard to various formal aspects will acquaint students with the aesthetic and narrative features, as well as the meaning of films (or film scenes) and traditions of film. Students will acquire the competency and analytic skills to critically read and interpret audiovisual media, and will learn how to work with film in class (incl. such questions as how to assess the students' media literacy, for interest and ability may vary greatly within a class, so that they can teach a broad range to diverse students (age, abilities, interests)). Finally, we will create tasks and lesson plans centered on our findings.

Picturing the Unimaginable: Visual Holocaust children's literature to inspire unity and hope – 4412 687

Online-SE, Di 16:45 – 18:15, BI 80.303/304 (Online)

This innovative, hybrid course with an online-only option for international students has been designed for a mixed-discipline cohort to explore the contribution visual Holocaust children's literature (picturebooks and graphic novels) can make to supporting global citizenship education and promoting the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC). The selected children's literature, combined with story-based pedagogy, human rights pedagogy, and a global citizenship education framework, offers an entry point to take action against not only antisemitism but any kind of discrimination, intolerance, and prejudice. The course has been designed to inform and encourage both text-based (spoken and written) and arts-based interaction.

The course consists of asynchronous and asynchronous online-sessions (April - May 2025) as well as two on-site workshop days in June 2025

Methods and Materials for CLIL – 4412 404

SE, Do 09:45 – 11:15, BI 80.303/304 (MakerSpace)

CLIL steht für integriertes Fremdsprachen- und Sachfachlernen. Wer das Potential dieser Unterrichtsform ausschöpfen will, muss beide Elemente systematisch berücksichtigen und aufeinander beziehen. Mit Blick auf die Inhalte des jeweiligen Faches bedeutet dies die gezielte Erschließung der erweiterten fachlichen Perspektiven in der Dimension des interkulturellen Lernens. Der gezielte Aufbau fachsprachlicher Elemente steht im Mittelpunkt der sprachlichen Lernprozesse. Insbesondere im Anfangsunterricht ist dabei aber eine Diskrepanz zwischen kognitiven und den fremdsprachlichen Möglichkeiten der Lernenden einzukalkulieren. Wie kann diese Lücke geschlossen werden und wie sollten Arbeitsmaterialien gestaltet sein, um das fachliche und fremdsprachliche Lernen zu erleichtern?

Ausgehend von einem didaktisch-methodischen Bezugsrahmen stehen praxisrelevante Fragen der Planung und Durchführung von Unterricht sowie der Materialanalyse und -aufbereitung im Mittelpunkt des Seminars. Folgende Schwerpunkte sind dabei geplant:

- Eckpunkte einer Didaktik
- Sprachliche Grundlagen inhaltlichen Lernens:
Planungsfelder für die Integration von Sprache und Inhalt: fachlicher Diskurs, Rezeption/Produktion - Fachmethodische Arbeitsweisen im Umgang mit unterschiedlichen Materialien und entsprechende Sprachfunktionen – Systematische Wortschatzarbeit
- Unterrichtsmaterialien:
Unterschiedliche Materialien und ihre Bezugsquellen – Schulbuchvergleich /Materialanalyse –Perspektivwechsel: kontrastive und komplementäre Materialarrangements - Strategien sprachlicher Unterstützung – Scaffolding – Exemplarische Erarbeitung eigener Materialien
- Unterrichtspraxis:
Kriterien für die Planung von CLIL-Unterricht – methodische Fragen der Unterrichtsdurchführung

Die einzelnen Aspekte werden anhand konkreter Beispiele aus der CLIL-Unterrichtspraxis erarbeitet. Sekundärliteratur und Material werden rechtzeitig über StudIP bekanntgegeben bzw. im Rahmen des Seminars zur Verfügung gestellt.

Hinweis: Dieser Kurs ist für das CLIL-Zertifikat (Vertiefungsbereich) geöffnet.

Survey Course I: American Literature I (Group A) – 4412 050

SE, Mo 11:30 – 13:00, BI 97.11

In this course, students will learn about the history of American literature, from Native American oral literature to the turn of the 20th century, while being introduced to the many voices of the Americas. Reading assignments and presentations on historical backgrounds will enable plenary discussions on what it means to be American – the key question that guides this survey course, taking us on a cultural journey through literary history that encompasses creation stories, historical documents, poetry, political speeches, fiction, and essays. Through discussions of works ranging from the precolonial and early national periods to the Civil War and postbellum era, from author Anne Bradstreet and Washington Irving to W.E.B. Du Bois, students will trace the construction of American identities and develop their analytical skills and understanding of American cultural history.

Caveat: the course has a heavy reading load, so start reading early. The syllabus will be available on StudIP well in advance of the semester.

SE, Do 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.1

This course (the first in a two-part sequence) aims at providing a rough (and necessarily sketchy) overview over the key texts and periods of English literature from the Renaissance to Romanticism. Our starting point will be the merits, pitfalls and governing principles of writing literary histories. We will then focus on Medieval, Renaissance (Elizabethan, Jacobean, 1500 to 1660), Classicist Restoration, Augustan (1660 to 1789), up to Romantic literature (1790 to 1830).

Survey Course I: British Literature – Beginnings to Romanticism (Group B) – 4412 056
SE, Fr 13:15 – 14:45, BI 85.1

This survey course is designed as a rough overview over the literary history(ies) ranging from Medieval Literature to early Romanticism. Our literary as well as cultural journey will encompass poetry, drama, narrative fiction, essays, and culturally relevant critical texts. By discussing selected works ranging from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance to Pre-Romanticism, from Beowulf and William Shakespeare to Thomas Gray, we will trace lines of development and place these texts into their literary, as well as cultural contexts. This course will provide an opportunity to deepen analytical skills and to further an awareness of literature as a crucial part of rapidly changing times.

Morphology – 4412 043

SE, Di 15:00 – 16:30, BI 80.1

This course will introduce the participants to the study of the structure of words and the formation of new complex words in contemporary English. After a review of relevant basic linguistic terms for morphological analysis (word, lexeme, morpheme, prefix, suffix, root, stem, base), we will consider inflection as well as productive types of English word formation:

- a) derivational suffixation (unfriendly, yuppiedom) incl. conversion/zero derivation (to tango, to email) and
- b) compounding (teapot, couch potato).

The particular status of non-syntagmatic processes of abbreviation like blending (brunch), initialism (BBC), acronyms (NATO), or clipping (flu) will be discussed as a contrast to compounding and derivation. We will use current theoretical frameworks to describe:

- (a) the regular word-internal structures,
- (b) their rule-based semantic interpretation,
- (c) general semantic changes as effects of word formation, and
- (d) pragmatic and other extra-linguistic blockings of word creation.

We will also address the following questions:

- a) How do children acquire knowledge of word-formation processes and the meaning of complex words?,
- b) How are (complex) words represented and stored in the monolingual mental lexicon?

Dr. R. Carroll:

Phonetics & Phonology – 4412 041

SE, Mi 08:00 – 09:30, BI 97.11

Phonetics and phonology are concerned with the ways in which humans produce and hear speech. They thus represent the science of speech sounds and the theory behind phonological rules. Languages vary widely in their sound structures: their number and type of phonemes, the shape of syllable structure, use of tonal contrasts, stress patterns, and so on. At the same time, all languages show striking similarities in the way they structure their sound systems. Phonology strives to understand the structure behind these differences across different speech systems. This seminar introduces the science of speech sounds and the theory behind phonological rules.

- How can we describe the pronunciation of a language?

- What do people do when they play language games?
- Why do loanwords sound so utterly differently from the way they sound in the donor language?
- How does the mind represent the phonological form of words?

We will revisit the concepts of phonetics and phonology that were introduced in the B2 module but focus on rules and theoretical models that go beyond the descriptions of surface phenomena. Topics include acoustic, articulatory, and perceptual phonetics, distinctive feature theory, tones, suprasegmental phenomena, word stress, phonology above the word, as well as different theoretical approaches to explaining and predicting underlying structures.

Syntax – 4412 040

SE, Do 16:45 – 18:15, BI 80.1

This course is designed as an introduction to the most recent theory of generative syntax, The Minimalist Program (Chomsky 1995). The Minimalist Program explores the fascinating idea that language, in particular, syntax, is optimal and can be reduced to a small set of universal economy principles. The Minimalist Program aims towards a powerful and universal explanation of sentence structure across languages. This course will exemplify the rationale and the implementation of the Minimalist approach to syntax. Using plenty of examples from English and other languages, you will get a step-by-step introduction to syntactic categories and structure, principles of syntactic movement, and parameters of cross-linguistic differences in word order.

This course will provide you with a sound foundation in syntactic theory and analysis; it is ideal for students who enjoyed the syntax part of the Introduction course.

Second Language Acquisition – 4412 023

SE, Do 11:30 – 13:00, BI 85.3

This course will provide an overview of the central issues discussed in second language acquisition, e.g.:

- What are the processes underlying language acquisition in general?
- Is there a difference between first and second language acquisition?
- What is the role of the first language?
- Are there individual differences between learners of the same second language?
- How do learners communicate in the second language?
- What is the role of instruction?

Current models / theories of (second) language acquisition, as well as empirical studies will be introduced. Students will also be familiarised with the analysis of language data.
